A Letter From...

John W. Mills

On behalf of Northern Vermont University-Lyndon, I would like to extend my warmest congratulations on your outstanding accomplishments. It is my pleasure, honor, and privilege to usher the Class of 2022 through Lyndon's 110th Commencement ceremony.

The goal of education is to be transformative to help students learn how to think more creatively, to engage others in our life experiences, and to thoughtfully create solutions that consider all involved. This has never been truer than it is now, during this unprecedented global endemic. Our best strategy is to keep trying, to keep being kind, to have patience with ourselves and practicing self-care, and to keep moving forward.

Graduates, know that even these uncertain times will provide you with experiences that will transform and challenge you as an individual. I encourage you to remain strong through these transformative experiences as you move through your life, staying mindful of your own role in that transformation and being a leader among others. And I especially salute your bravery and tenacity.

As alumni, you the Class of 2022 will join an extraordinary group of individuals who represent hope, creativity, and determination, and who share the courage to seek life-long learning and self-awareness as you make a difference in this ever-changing and unpredictable world. The relationships you have developed at NVU-Lyndon will continue to enrich you well beyond the confine of our hallways and Zoom rooms.

Thank you for choosing NVU-Lyndon for your educational and emotional growth. We have so enjoyed having you here, and I hope you will return often to visit. Even though our name may change, our campus remains in brick and mortar for you to visit, reminisce, and to celebrate in your successes.

All the best to you,

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "John W. Mills". The signature is written in a cursive, flowing style.

John W. Mills, Ph.D.
Interim President

A Brief History of Northern Vermont University-Lyndon

Founded as a one-year “normal” school for teacher training housed at nearby Lyndon Institute, the institution now known as Northern Vermont University-Lyndon has evolved continuously since its establishment in 1911. Consistent with educational practices of the times, the school, then known as Lyndon Training Course, expanded its curriculum in one-year increments, and the first two-year class graduated in 1923. In 1927, Rita Bole became principal of the school and oversaw the graduation of the first three year class of nine students in 1934. Ten years later, the state allowed Lyndon to grant four-year degrees so long as it remained a teacher training institution; the first four year degrees were granted to 18 students in 1944. By this time Vermont’s Northeast Kingdom had come to depend on Lyndon to address the educational needs of its residents.

Miss Bole, who led the school until 1955, figures prominently in the campus history. She worked to encourage the Vermont State Legislature to establish Lyndon Teachers College, saw the admission of the first male and first out-of-state students during the 1940s, and oversaw the college’s move to its current location, the former estate of Theodore N. Vail. T.N. Vail, first president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, had been instrumental in the establishment of Lyndon Institute, and Miss Bole recognized his vacant estate as the perfect place to house the growing college. The move to Vail Manor was completed on June 30, 1951, the day the school’s lease at Lyndon Institute was set to expire.

In 1961, the State Legislature established the Vermont State Colleges System, and Lyndon Teachers College became Lyndon State College. Degree programs in the liberal arts were added to complement the teacher training programs that had defined the college from day one. This was the beginning of a period of rapid growth and, in 1964, the campus began to expand: one by one, a library, a dormitory, a dining hall, a science wing, a gymnasium, and a theater appeared. The growing student population and changing demands ushered in rapid expansion of the Lyndon curriculum. In the 1970s, new programs were added in business administration, special education, recreation, meteorology, communications, human services, and physical education. During this decade the original Vail Manor was deemed unsafe and the Theodore N. Vail Center was built on the site of the old estate. It now houses the Vail Museum, preserving the name that has long been an integral part of the Lyndon tradition.

Steady growth continued in the 1980s and 1990s with more new construction and the development of academic programs in response to the evolving needs of the community. A twenty-five meter, six-lane pool was added to the recreational facilities in the Bole Center, and the completion of the Library Academic Center expanded the space available for both library collections and classrooms.

In 2005, a new residence hall and community building was constructed. The building was named The Rita L. Bole Complex, a continuing tribute to Miss Bole's legacy. In 2009 increasing enrollment led to the construction of The Academic and Student Activity Center, housing three academic departments, an event center, and additional computer labs. In 2014, the event center in this new building was dedicated to former President Carol A. Moore and her late husband, Thomas Moore.

On July 1, 2018, in the bold move of re-imagining higher education in our small state, Lyndon State College and Johnson State College unified to become Northern Vermont University, a two-campus institution of higher learning. Each campus retains its rich history and identity, as well as its athletics teams – the Lyndon Hornets and Johnson Badgers – but the collaboration and student opportunities now expand across two vibrant campuses located in Vermont's northern tier.

On July 1, 2023, Northern Vermont University will join with Castleton University and Vermont Technical College to become Vermont State University, a re-imagined higher education institution building on the strong legacies of its founding institutions. Vermont State University, with campuses at Johnson, Lyndon, Castleton, Randolph, and Williston and learning sites and modalities throughout the state and beyond, will bring the best of our institutions and more as a student-first university. Please stay in touch with us for information about this exciting development in the history of higher education in Vermont. We always enjoy the support and interest from our alums and their families.

Guest Speaker
Senator Kesha
Ram Hinsdale

Senator Kesha Ram Hinsdale of Burlington, Chittenden County, Vermont, was born in Los Angeles and attended public schools in Santa Monica, California. She is a Democratic Senator serving Vermont in the Chittenden District. She received a BS in Natural Resource Planning and a BA in Political Science from the University of Vermont in 2008, where she was Student Government Association President and graduated magna cum laude. Senator Ram Hinsdale also earned her Master of Public Administration from the Harvard Kennedy School of Government in 2018.

Her career in Vermont has spanned preschool education, legal advocacy for victims of domestic violence, and municipal civic engagement. She currently works to build social equity and inclusion in non-profit organizations, businesses, school districts, and municipalities. She served in the Vermont House of Representatives on behalf of Burlington, Chittenden District 6-4 from 2008 to 2016, where she sat on the House General, Housing & Military Affairs and Ways & Means Committees, and as Vice Chair of the House Natural Resources & Energy Committee. She has also served as Co-Chair of the Vermont Attorney General's Immigration Task Force, and as a member of the boards of Emerge Vermont, the Main Street Alliance of Vermont, Planned Parenthood of Northern New England, the Regenerative Food Network, and the Vermont Natural Resources Council.

Kesha lives with her husband, Jacob Hinsdale, who grew up on Country Cedars Farm in Charlotte, and their dog, Miso. To learn more about Senator Ram Hinsdale and her work, please visit the Vermont General Assembly web page.

Student Speaker Class of 2022

Robert “Bobby” A. Saba

B.S. Atmospheric Science
A.S. Electronic Journalism Arts

Originally from Mansfield, Massachusetts, Bobby Saba is graduating with degrees in Atmospheric Sciences and Broadcast and Digital Journalism. With a lifelong passion for the weather, Bobby came to the Northeast Kingdom looking to develop his broadcast skills and enter the field with real world experience.

Over the last four years at NVU, Bobby has been fully engaged and involved in campus life, despite the challenges of the pandemic. He served on the NVU – Lyndon AMS Student Chapter executive board for three years, and spent two as chapter president. In addition, he had the chance to work at NVU-Lyndon’s Admissions office, as a tutor in mathematics, and provided forecasts for the Vermont Agency of Transportation. Bobby is also a member of the NOAA Hollings Class of 2020.

After learning about the different sectors of atmospheric sciences and being able to explore them through classes and internships, Bobby then changed his post-graduation plans. In August, he will be moving to Norman, Oklahoma, to attend the University of Oklahoma in pursuit of his master’s degree in meteorology.

History of the Ceremonial Mace

The Ceremonial Mace, carried by the faculty marshal at the head of the processional and recessional, was commissioned by former Lyndon State College President Clive Veri (1983-1989), and was hand-carved by long-time adjunct in English and the Arts, Ramon Geremia. It took him approximately 35 hours to craft the mace out of walnut turning stock. The Latin phrase "Ad Illuminandum Regnum" was chosen by Professor Emeritus Graham Newell. It translates to mean "Toward the enlightenment of the Kingdom." The logo was the first of its kind, and the carved eagle atop the mace is a replica of the eagle weathervane in the Alexander Twilight Theatre lobby.

College Steps Program

College Steps is a non-profit organization partnered with NVU-Lyndon. The program provides support for students with varying abilities as they increase their skills in a college setting as they pursue post-secondary education. College Steps students earn a certificate in higher education over the course of two years by completing academic, vocational, and campus life requirements. They receive a cap and gown and participate in the ceremony as a mark of their achievements.

Lyndon's Alma Mater

Above a green and pleasant valley,
Beneath an azure northern sky,
Fair Lyndon bids us rally
To sing her praises high.

Chorus:

Lyndon! Alma Mater!
Hail to thee forever!
From every loyal son and daughter,
Lyndon! Our own!

When the winter stars are shining
Beyond the mountain's highest rim,
Our song of friendship ever binding
Shall rise thy fame to win.

(Chorus)

And though the future brings its sorrow
Or though the future brings us grace,
Thy memory fair beyond tomorrow
Time never shall efface.

(Chorus)
